Lost Boy

In this essay I will be analyzing the two different versions of the song "Lost Boy" by Ruth Berhe and Draco Drum. "Lost Boy" was originally written by Ruth Berhe and "is about a boy who does not want to grow up and escapes reality to play in his imagination with Peter Pan" (Muller 1). Ruth Berhe wrote this song after watching a tv show called "Once Upon a Time" which features the fictional character Peter Pan. She was inspired to write the song because of Peter Pan "syndrome, the adults who refuse to grow up and take responsibility" (Muller 1). The second version was written by Draco Drum and is about a man who stood up to his father and escaped the abusive and mental state that his father put him and his mother through. The original version of "Lost Boy" was released in 2017 and the only singer was Ruth Berhe but a year later Draco Drum released a remix of the song which didn't pick up much attention outside the black community.

In the original version, the song opens with the lines of "There was a time when I was alone". I see the artist using the rhetorical appeal pathos because the audience are introduced to this line with no context whatsoever and mixed with the sad piano chorus and her voice plays with the audience's emotions. If you watch the video of the song a couple of times you will notice that she was talking about her past as there are writings of her memories and what seems to be like her old diaries. "Nowhere to go and no place to call home" although in reality she has a
